

Etical kodex

Written by Administrator

Thursday, 20 October 2011 14:27 - Last Updated Friday, 13 July 2012 13:17

Club Codex of Ethics

Codex defines the boundaries of club members in relation to other members of the club and the club itself.

Performance or failure to comply with the principles set out in the Codex can be assessed and comparing criteria of members.

Acceptation of the Codex increases the credibility and prestige of the club.

members:

- The controls generally accepted principles of ethics
- Comply with generally accepted legal norms
- They behave, so that in no case was damaged reputation and prestige of the club and its members
- They accept only those obligations that are able to meet
- They prevent disputes if they arise, seeking the amicable settlement of their
- Actively according to their capabilities and ability to participate in club activities
- Materials must not exploit the club for their own financial gain
- They must not allow access to the member of the club website outsiders
- Preserve secrecy with regard to information concerning the internal affairs club
- According to their capabilities, provide other members of the club effective assistance
- They may use the logo for the club's promotion

Violation of the ethical code of the club can lead to suspension and ultimately termination of membership.